Biopure has announced the launch of its Biosurgical Graft GRIPS® (Growth Reconstructive Implant and Pharmacokinetic System) for the first time in the United States. Developed using proprietary science, BioGRIPS® (or Biograft®) can be used to stimulate bone growth and control tissue growth, restoring the appearance of bone after a soft tissue surgical excision. “More than half of the adult population will experience bone loss due to an accident or a disease,” said Trevor R. Goddard, President of Biopure. “Many physicians are using Biograft® to help them replace soft tissue that has been lost, and to provide patients that has a reconstructive solution.”

BioGRIPS® is produced using Biograft® (a dehydroepiandrosterone, or DHEA, in a lipid emulsion) and a detailed understanding of the pharmacokinetic interactions of DHEA. The science behind Biograft® is proprietary, and has been used in clinical trials for the last three years. It is marketed in Germany and Europe under the European name of Biograft®, and the company has conducted a multi-center, FDA-regulated, double blind, sham controlled, single dose clinical trial evaluating the efficacy of Biograft® for soft tissue augmentation. “This first clinical trial, which supported the potential effectiveness of Biograft®, Clip Studio Paint EX Patch Full). This is the Moment the Deadliest Hurricane of 2018 Hit the Bahamas As Hurricane Dorian battered the Bahamas, pulling down trees, hurling roofs off homes, and killing at least 51 people, NBC News sought out a survivor on the country's Great Abaco Islands, a chain of 115 islands that includes the island where this deadly storm made landfall. As their home was being torn apart, Nassim, 21, spoke for the first time about what he saw. "I saw a young boy who was on his roof trying to stay alive, just screaming for help and I couldn't find anyone to help him," Nassim said. "He just kept screaming for help and he ended up jumping off from a rope which luckily was still attached. And if he hadn't of done that, he would've been dead, or his house would've been totally destroyed." Carbon Dioxide is a simple and direct nonradioactive, high-sensitivity, stable, and robust radioactive tracer and a good affinity ligand. In this article, we present the evaluation of CO₂ as a radioactive, nonradioactive, stable, and robust tracer, and the use of CO₂ in affinity studies of GABAA receptors. The carbon dioxide group [(14)C] was used to investigate the affinities of a series of compounds to the benzodiazepine receptor of mammalian cortical synaptosomes. The GABAA receptor affinity of the compounds was monitored by the displacement of [3H]flunitrazepam from the ligand-binding site on brain cortical synaptic membrane. CO₂ was found to be a high-affinity receptor ligand with a KD of 17-23 microM. The tracer effect of CO₂ was high, the nonradioactive binding of the labeled compound was low, the solubility was high, and the radioactive decay was low. Furthermore, the CO₂ group was stable, stable to various solvents and did not degrade in high temperatures, did not alter
